Are you ready for the end?

Congratulations! If you're reading this, that means you're alive ... for now. Starting from today, you have exactly five months before the world will burst into flames and most of you will probably die. Sorry.

Unless of course, you are a follower of Harold Camping, a California-based radio show host cum prophet who is basically God's personal Deep Throat. According to Camping, Jesus Christ makes his second visit to Earth today, armed only with earthquakes and a pack of matches. Though if you're in Camping's camp, you may just be one of the lucky 200 million folks guaranteed sold-out seats in heaven.

Obviously, I need to get on that list—I burn really easily. Which is why I recently renounced my belief in nihilism and converted into Camping's special brand of Christianity.

You're probably scared. I am too. But I believe that preparing for the end is the wisest course of action.

For starters, send me all of your earthly possessions, except for photos and cheap stuff that won't sell on eBay. I will make it my duty to safeguard all your beloved items while you are dead or chillaxing in heaven. Jewelry, cameras, laptops, iPods, iPads and travelers' checks are all accepted.

Next, stop paying your bills. Do not write a check for this month's mortgage or your school loan payment. What's the point? Come October, you won't have a house, a degree or even a credit score to worry about any longer.

Also, reach out to your community. Spread the good prophetic word by making posters with cryptic statements like "Judgment Day is Near" or "During this Armageddon, Ben Affleck does die!" Picket these signs in front of your local supermarket or school. Warn others that the world will end soon and that there is nothing they can do about it.

Offer people Kool-Aid at any opportunity.

Make a list of all the things you want to do before you die.

Circle the ones that are actually plausible, especially the dangerous or illegal ones. Go do them. Even if you're convicted, you'll spend only five months in prison—tops.

When it's really nearing the final stretch (maybe late summer?), quit your job, cash in your 401(k) and buy a first-class plane ticket to Vegas.

Bet on black. Stuff yourself at the buffet. Eat or drink everything in the hotel room mini-bar. Order pay-per-view movies all day long. Don't exercise, shower or brush your teeth.

Ultimately, you should live every day to the fullest because this is, unfortunately, your last chance.

However, I do suggest you refrain from Googling or research the date Sept. 6, 1994. It's nothing, really—just the date of Camping's original prediction for the end of the world. Apparently, he made a calculation error. You know how difficult math is. Don't worry, this time, he says it's for real. And even if he's wrong again and you're still around on Oct. 22, relax. The Mayan apocalypse is just around the corner.

JOSE M. OSORIO/TRIBUNE

IN From the Beltway back to the City of Big Shoulders: Former White House chief of staff Rahm Emanuel ascended to Chicago's seat of power Monday as the 46th mayor of this fair town. His 23-minute address in Millennium Park touched on themes from his campaign including education, crime and that pesky $580 million budget shortfall. Also, he was at the Bulls-Miami game Wednesday, cheering his face off.

IN, OUT, WHATEVER

It was an exciting week to be in the Windy City as we saw the inauguration of a new mayor, the coming exit of a TV queen and the infuriating presence of that guy they call the King.

WHATEVS After he and the Heat got spanked Sunday, LeBron James somehow managed to show up against the mighty trinity of Derrick Rose, Carlos Boozer and Joakim Noah on Wednesday. With the series tied and headed back to Miami, all we can say is the victory is going to be so much sweeter having watched James and Co. mug for the cameras so annoyingly during their stay in Chicago.

OUT Who else but Oprah

Winfrey could have the United Center cleared during the Bulls' playoff run? No one, that's who. And if that feat weren't impressive enough, Winfrey's farewell taping Tuesday resulted in a celebrity pilgrimage unlike any Chicago has seen before. O drew everyone: Michael Jordan, Beyonce, Tom Cruise, Tom Hanks, Madonna, Maya Angelou, Stevie Wonder—who the heck is she going to have on her very last show?

Want to eat crepes and listen to live music? Get your farmers market on!

By Kelly McCabe Grove | FOR REDEYE

Where to go for brunch this weekend? Here's a new one for you: the farmers market—and you don't even have to cook.

There's much more to do at the farmers markets than shop for produce. There are restaurants making food on-site, chefs doing cooking demos, live music and free classes on a range of topics (backyard chickens!). And farmers markets are a great place to get your people-watching fix.

"It's fun to talk to people; you see new people every day," Maggie Nogaj said as she worked the La Provence bread and croissant booth May 14 at the Lincoln Park Farmers Market.

In fact, there's kind of a scene at the markets. Cute 20-something couples eat made-to-order egg sandwiches at Green City Market in Lincoln Park. Foodies hit the Pilsen Community Market on Sundays in search of Yvolina's Tamales (they sell out fast).

Next time you feel like a leisurely morning of food and free entertainment, consider your neighborhood farmers market. To help, we've rounded up some of the best things to do and eat—no recipe necessary. KELLY MCCABE GROVE IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

STUFF TO EAT

Crepes

A popular portable food, crepes are a hit at farmers markets across the city. Flip Crepes is a staple at the Wicker Park, Daley Plaza and Division Street markets, serving up a ham and Parmesan crepe and a "banatella" crepe: Nutella, banana, and rum raisins or walnuts.

Fried pies

Wicker Park vegetarian restaurant Handlebar fries up savory and sweet pies Sundays at the Logan Square Farmers Market. The savory versions are available in different combinations of fresh cheeses, veggies, potatoes and eggs. Sweet versions include in-season fruit flavors such as strawberry-rhubarb or lemon curd and blueberry.

Tamales

Using ingredients from the Green City Market, Las Manas' Amber Wojcinski whips up fresh tamales in seemingly endless flavors like Capriole goat cheese, roasted poblano and Mint Creek chorizo and Swiss chard. If you're already full from sampling the market's other goods, Las Manas also makes packaged tamales to take home.

STUFF TO DO

Green demos

Each week, the Andersonville Farmers Market offers eco-friendly classes and demos. Last year's lessons included worm composting and raising backyard chickens, as well as biking and cooking demos, according to Laura Hammer, associate director of the Andersonville Chamber of Commerce. Look for this year's schedule in early June at andersonville.org/andersonville-farmers-market.

Country Chef Challenge

Three local chefs will take part in an "Iron Chef"-like cooking competition exclusively using ingredients from the Daley Plaza Farmers Market from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 4. The reigning champ is Blackbird pastry chef Patrick Fahy.

Live music

Most weeks, many markets—including

Cooking lessons

Learn cooking tips at the Green City Market at 10:30 a.m. Wednesdays and Saturdays. This year's lineup of chef-instructors includes Mark Steuer of The Bedford on Wednesday and Tim Cottini of Cafe Ba Ba Reeba on May 28. (Bistronic's Martial Noguier, above right, did a demo this week.) Watch for more names at greencitymarket.org/calendar.

Andersonville and Logan Square (logan-squarefarmersmarket.org/music)—have free entertainment from local bands and musicians.

Chef's BBQ Benefit

Green City Market's biggest event features dishes from nearly 100 chefs using ingredients from the market's farmers. The "true Taste of Chicago," as the event's been dubbed, also includes locally made beer, wine and spirits. The Chef's BBQ Benefit is set for 5:30-8 p.m. July 21; $100, tickets available now at [brownpaper tickets.com](http://brownpaper tickets.com).

Fiadone

Zullo's fiadone—similar to empanadas (above right)—come with sweet stuffings, as well as savory, such as chicken pesto, vegetable, mushrooms and lamb. Look for the mini hand pies (three for $5)—as well as Zullo's pizzas, popovers, focaccia, doughnuts (above left) and chicken nuggets with honey—at the Logan Square Farmers Market and Green City Market.

Bangers and bacon

Irish and British foods may not immediately come to mind when thinking of farmers markets, but Chicago-based Spencer's Foods is out to prove that's bollocks, cooking up bangers (sausages) and dry-cured bacon. The bangers come in traditional pork or pork and herb flavors, and the bacon—which is pulled from the loin, not the belly—is leaner than the American sort.

ERIK LARSON

Erik Larson, the bestselling author of The Devil in the White City, discusses and signs his new book In the Garden of Beasts: Love, Terror and an American Family in Hitler's Berlin at the Chicago Public Library. The free program takes place on Monday, May 23 at 6:00 p.m., in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium (Lower Level) at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State. In 1933, Chicago Professor William E. Dodd became America's first ambassador to Hitler's Germany. He and his family enjoyed the pomp and parties in Germany until they slowly became aware of the mounting horrors of the time. The result is a stunning work that speaks volumes about why the world did not recognize the grave threat posed by Hitler until Europe was awash in terror. For more information, visit the Library's website at chicagopubliclibrary.org, or call 312-747-4050.

Piracy has been with us from the beginning of time. Julius Caesar was taken prisoner and ransomed, and he later crucified his captors. The infamous Blackbeard looted ships in the 18th century. There was little attractive about pirates.

However, don't let historical fact get in the way of "The Captain Jack Sparrow Handbook."

Written in a breezy fashion by Jason Heller, the "Handbook" is thoroughly based in the world of Disney pirates. For example: "The legendary Elizabeth Swann became one of the greatest pirates in history. Pirates may be a loutish lot, but talent is talent, regardless of the package in which it is wrapped."

Elizabeth Swann was a character in "Pirates of the Caribbean," not a real female pirate like Anne Bonney

The Captain Jack Sparrow Handbook: A Swashbucker's Guide from Disney's Pirates of the Caribbean

By Jason Heller; available now or Mary Read.

The "Handbook" does have touches of realism: "A pirate's life isn't always so exotic. Some days you'll be seizing a plump, loot-laden galleon; other days you'll be preempting an invasion by some uniformed do-gooders."

It's loaded with helpful hints, such as don't stand behind a loaded cannon when it fires unless you want "to get yourself a peg leg. Or two."

Want to broaden your vocabulary? In the "Handbook," you have a pirate lesson including "Bilge Rat," "Scalawag" and, of course, "Feculent Maggot"—"Feculent means 'scummy' in the particular sense of 'soiled by biological waste material,' and a maggot is, well, a maggot."

Pragmatically, this romantic view of piracy has nothing to do with the modern-day piracy around the world. It's pure Hollywood.

Saturday Night Live

10:29 p.m. Saturday, NBC

I haven't been keeping up with "SNL" as in the past, but from what I hear around the office, it's just as hit-or-miss as ever. Still, I may check in for the season finale. I've never not liked an edition hosted by Justin Timberlake. "[Bleep] In a Box," "Motherlover" (below), "[Bleep] in My Pants"—what musically marvelous digital short will he and the Lonely Island team come up with this time? Also, Lady Gaga is the musical guest, so something bizarre is likely to happen there. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Disc-Overy

Tinie Tempah

Tinie Tempah has conquered his homeland with a smash album and is ready to take on America with a new version of his "Disc-Overy" debut. The 22-year-old "grime" scene rapper offers a potent mix of hip-hop, dance hall reggae and drum 'n' bass electronica, and Tinie rides it well with clever rhymes and a slick, charismatic delivery. His American breakthrough single, "Written in the Stars," is one of the album's more conventional tracks. What truly sets Tinie apart from the American hip-hop pack are the more "grime"-oriented tracks.

The Mechanic

Available now

In this remake of the 1972 film starring Charles Bronson, the jaw-clenching Jason Statham plays Arthur Bishop, one of the best mechanics (aka hitmen) in the business. If you didn't see the original, no problem. Fans of the Bronson version will notice one major change. But overall, Richard Wenk's script for the update is so similar to the original by Lewis John Carlino that both men get film credit.

Vices & Virtues

Panic! At the Disco

"Ever since we met / I only shoot up with your perfume" ... sigh. Maybe these melodic Fall Out Boy cohorts would at least garner comedic respect if Pete Wentz helped them pen an "I don't care what you think as long as it's about me." As is, Panic! At the Disco are more talented than haters think and less than their fans do. Now they're down to a duo, Brendan Urie and Spencer Smith, and "Vices & Virtues" has no bad songs but no knockouts, either. DAN WEISS, THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

SONG

I Am Woman

Jordin Sparks

Can someone please find Jordin Sparks a good song to sing? Her new single, "I Am Woman," is such a letdown. No, it's not a remake of the Helen Reddy anthem, despite what the title suggests. And it's not a remake of Kelly Clarkson's "Miss Independent," as the music would suggest. Instead, it's a pale, noisy approximation of them both, with a bit of Beyonce's "Run the World (Girls)" thrown in. Someone help an Idol out.

Southern comfort

By Lisa Arnett

This week, Forbes released its list of the world's most powerful celebrities. Lady Gaga is first, Oprah is second, and they both love Art Smith's Gold Coast restaurant Table Fifty Two. Famous for his refined takes on Southern recipes, Smith launched Sunday brunch last month. Following in the footsteps of these legendary ladies, I made a reservation and prepared to indulge, Southern-style.

Server says: She recommends the short ribs and grits ($31), the egg-white omelet with asparagus, mushrooms and heirloom tomatoes ($16), and the crab cake ($21), the restaurant's spin on eggs Benedict.

We say: Sure, Art Smith is looking pretty svelte these days thanks to his "healthy lifestyle," but I didn't come to his house to eat an egg-white omelet. The crab cake dish deconstructs a traditional Benedict and pairs a perfect crab cake with a split biscuit, poached egg, remoulade and fennel tucked underneath.

About those waffles: Surely you've seen Gaga's tweets about Smith's chicken and waffles. Every other diner in the place seems to be shelling out $24 for them. I wasn't thrilled about the price, but it's true: They're the best I've had, with a waffle that's almost pastry-like and that ridiculously crispy chicken that's bathed in buttermilk and dredged in herbs before hitting the fryer.

Sideshow: Every single one of the side dishes looks tempting, but the prices ($8-$12) will keep you from going overboard. Order a few for the table and share bites to make your brunch even more indulgent. A monstrous chocolate cinnamon roll ($12) gets more fudgy as you reach the center, but for that much dough, we prefer the bacon doughnuts (also $12), little bites of heaven sprinkled with smoky chunks of bacon. Smith's famous three-cheese mac ($12) is crusty, bubbly and insanely cheesy in the best way possible.

Chicken and waffles
BARRY BRECHEISEN PHOTOS FOR METROMIX

Bloody mary

Day drinking: Not especially kicky, we'd pass on the pricey bloody mary ($14) next time for the Kentucky champagne ($12), a bubbly bourbon number.

Bottom line: Just like dinner at Table Fifty-Two, Sunday brunch is soulful, decadent ... and expensive. This is a special occasion brunch, no question, so start looking ahead on your calendar for a good excuse.

ON TV

Watch Matt on "You & Me This Morning" at 7 a.m. Fridays on WCIU, The U.

It's hard to watch this

After sleeping with blatantly terrible guys and then whining about how terrible they are, stunning beauties (Cameron Richardson of "Entourage," Sophie Monk of "Date Movie") decide the best way to get men is clonking them over the head with a surfboard and seducing them when they wake up. I don't get it, either.

The buzz: For the time being, "Hard Breakers" is opening only in Miami and San Diego before it arrives shortly on DVD. (Clearly Midwesterners can't understand a movie that in any way involves surfboards.) In pursuit of unintentionally bad camp, I just couldn't resist reviewing a movie whose supporting cast includes Tia Carrere, Tom Arnold, Sticky Fingaz, Alexis Arquette and Chris Kattan.

The verdict: Was the requirement for casting simply a proof of purchase at Hollister? This surfing sex comedy does no favors to any of those words, and words don't really seem to be familiar territory to most of these characters in the first place. The one star awarded to the film is only for Kattan's amusingly sleazy movie producer. Virtually every other moment of this awkward nonsense proves only how far certain stars have fallen and that beautiful people can, in fact, be so dumb that they're undateable. As if anyone didn't know that.

Did you know? The movie actually features a "boing boing" noise as Alexis (Richardson) elbows Lindsay's (Monk) breast. Really.

Love you, Kristen.

Everything
Must Go (R)

Ferrell does drama. It works.

Pirates of the Caribbean
(PG-13)

Enough already.

LONGING FOR LEBRON?

LeBron James

If James had joined the Bulls, here's what would be different

By Scott Bolohan FOR REDEYE

It was less than a year ago that the Bulls tried to woo LeBron James to Chicago. Depending on whom you believe, he gave it strong consideration. While the Bulls turned out fine without him, it's easy to wonder how different things could have been with James in Chicago. Here are four conclusions we're relatively certain we could make had he ended up in a Bulls uniform. SCOTT BOLOHAN IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

1 THE ROSTER WOULD HAVE BEEN DRASTICALLY DIFFERENT.

Would Dwyane Wade or Chris Bosh have joined James in Chicago? Certainly James wouldn't be the Bulls' only major addition. Wade met multiple times with the Bulls, but it seems like a stretch that he would have left Miami. More likely is Bosh would have headed to Chicago, with Carlos Boozer going to Miami. This would leave the Bulls' reserves looking more like Miami's Bench Slobs than the current Bench Mob.

2 DERRICK ROSE WOULD NOT HAVE WON THE MVP AWARD.

The award likely would have gone to Orlando's Dwight Howard. But how good would Rose have been this year? His role would be reduced, particularly regarding the number of shots he'd take with the much superior offense around him. The Bulls would have become James' team, and Rose would have been more of a supporter instead of the clear leader.

3 THE BULLS STILL WOULD HAVE BEEN REALLY, REALLY GOOD.

Joakim Noah, Luol Deng and Taj Gibson make up a significantly better supporting cast than what the Heat have now. We're talking about a historically great starting five; replacing Keith Bogans with James might be the greatest upgrade in history. Throw in a full year of Bosh instead of half a year of Boozer, and you are looking at scary territory. The Bulls won 62 games this year. Is it a stretch to think they could have won at least eight more games?

4 LEBRON WOULD HAVE STARRED IN A SEQUEL TO 'THE DILEMMA,' LIKELY TITLED 'THE DECISION.'

What wacky hijinks would Vince Vaughn and Kevin James get themselves into with new sidekick LeBron? Probably the same ones they always do, only at the end Vaughn and Kevin James would have to carry the movie while LeBron disappeared into the background.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeyechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Tastes like Gwyneth

Paltrow's getting busy in the kitchen, but can she keep up with our favorite chefs?

By Dana Moran | REDEYE

Gwyneth Paltrow is marketing herself as plenty of things—mom, TV star, potential crooner. But her latest push seems to be in the kitchen. Gwynnie recently released "My Father's Daughter," a book of recipes celebrating "family togetherness," co-written by Mario Batali. Clearly these aren't things she'll be cooking for her rock star friends. We looked at what Paltrow's been whipping up lately to see how she stacks up against some of America's favorite celeb cooks.

DELICIOUS, EASY RECIPES CELEBRATING FAMILY & TOGETHERNESS

Padma Lakshmi

The luxurious, catlike host of "Top Chef" might just be Paltrow's secret life twin. Both have done modeling work (Lakshmi for Ralph Lauren, Paltrow for Estee Lauder), both have their own cookbooks and we suspect that both have never actually eaten any of the food in the aforementioned cookbooks.

Wolfgang Puck

These days, you're most likely to find Wolfgang in airports, with Wolfgang Puck Express locations from Tokyo to O'Hare. Paltrow's extensive traveling sked means she's pretty likely to show up at an airport too—but let's be honest, she probably has her own plane.

Rachael Ray

Ray loves Chicago restaurants. Ann Sather boasts on its menu that she loves its French Toast Fantasy. Lincoln Park's Bourgeois Pig still is incredulous about her visit. Chicago joints might soon be atwitter about Paltrow too. Her latest "GOOP" newsletter details her favorite Chitown eateries, including Schwa, The Publican and RL Restaurant.

Julia Child

Julia's hooting antics and general ridiculousness made her a star on the "Saturday Night Live"-parodied "The French Chef." Maybe Paltrow's trying to work toward her own show with her work as an offbeat teacher on "Glee" ... or she just likes doing weird accents.

Guy Fieri

Paltrow certainly wouldn't be a fan of the "Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives" host's normal culinary choices, but maybe they could trade fashion tips. Please, for the love of God, get that man to do something better with his hair.

HOT DATE

June 29

The new release date for "Transformers: Dark of the Moon," partially shot in Chicago last summer. The original date was July 1, but it was shifted because, according to Paramount and MTV News, "early response to footage, especially the 3-D footage, has been great."

Smells like teen spirit

Justin Bieber is multi-talented. Not only does he make music, a 3-D movie and even nail polish, but now he's tinkering with his second fragrance—a women's perfume called Someday. "Let's be real, the way a girl smells is very important to a guy," Bieber told Women's Wear Daily, according to usmagazine.com. "I have such a deep connection with my fans, so creating a fragrance that I personally love is another way I can bring them closer to my world." His unisex fragrance My World is already on the market. Someday is expected in stores next month.

On the loose

Yes, you did see a dog in the audience during this week's sing-off episode of "American Idol." But it wasn't just any dog. Wilfred (Jason Gann) and his buddy, Ryan (Elijah Wood), got cozy while listening—and promoting their new FX comedy, "Wilfred," about a man who believes he can communicate with a foul-mouthed pooch. The series debuts at 9 p.m. June 23.

HypnoMama

When Jessica Alba has her second child with hubby Cash Warren, she plans to use HypnoBirthing. She won't be hypnotized and wake up with her baby, she said on Friday's "The Ellen DeGeneres Show," but Warren will lead her through a guided meditation to relax. "Normally I want to strangle him, but at that moment, it's sort of calming and wonderful."

More on Middle-Earth

Harry Potter isn't the only franchise aiming to employ every actor in England. Peter Jackson cast "V for Vendetta's" Stephen Fry in his upcoming "The Hobbit." Fry will play the Master of Laketown, Jackson announced on his Facebook page. Fry joins a cast that includes Martin Freeman ("The Office" in the U.K.) and Ian McKellen.
